1. The ECTS credits assigned in the module catalogue are designated as follows: Credit points not listed in parentheses are awarded when the pertinent examination of the module or module parts have/has been successfully completed. Credit Points in parentheses are listed for calculatory purposes only.

2. The semester for taking a module can either be binding or may be considered as a recommendation, depending on the applicable data in Anlage 2 of the Prüfungs- und Studienordnung for your Programme. In this module catalogue, the options are indicated as “scheduled semester” and “recommended semester”.

3. Please note: The module catalogue is merely intended to serve as an orientation whereas the provisions of the applicable version of the Prüfungs- und Studienordnung (in German only) of your programme are legally binding. See: www.lmu.de/studienangebot and select your programme.

Semester Recommended semester: 1

Duration The completion of the module takes 1 semester.

Content Students will acquire an overview of the key ideas, theories and processes of Teaching English as a Foreign Language. They will gain insight into the central aspects of teaching and learning the English language and English literature in their specific intercultural contexts. The module provides opportunities for studying subject-specific texts as well as for discussing current topics and issues of the field of Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL). This includes a look into current research with its implications for the practice of English language teaching.

Learning outcomes

- Overview of language acquisition theories and the influence of key learner characteristics on individual learning outcomes
- Understanding of theories about communicative English

	language teaching <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Overview of theories about intercultural learning • Ability to discuss and critically assess current issues in the ongoing debates about TEFL and relate these to basic theoretical assumptions • Ability to transfer important aspects of this discourse to practical problems in the learning and teaching of languages, as well as to questions of cultural, literary and medial learning

Duration The completion of the module takes 1 semester.

Content In this seminar, students systematically and comprehensively broaden and deepen the specialist and methodological knowledge and skills they acquired in their previous studies. Based on a chosen body of texts, defined by their historical or cultural or generic interdependence, they develop a deepened and methodologically reflected understanding of the genesis, development and the varied history of reception of these texts which they discuss within their specific social, political and cultural contexts and with special reference to the current research in that area.

Students focus primarily on the study of the generation and development of theories within literary and cultural studies, on the varying descriptive models of literary and cultural studies as well as media studies and on their practical application in research.

Learning outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Advanced specialist competency with special emphasis on aspects of research• Comprehensive insights in a specific area of the theoretical debates in literary and cultural studies as well as media studies• Competence and experience in applying theories in an individually developed approach to a chosen research problem• Ability to contribute to various forms of academic discourse and to argue one's own position in the ongoing debates on a specific issue• Ability to independently research a specific topic, evaluate one's own findings and present one's results in a well-structured form, both orally and in writing, in appropriate academic discourse

Content	Building on existing basic, subject-specific theoretical and methodological knowledge and skills, students work on a corpus of literary and/or theoretical texts on a specific topic. Supported by their supervisor, they do so individually and largely independently. They research and work on relevant research literature on their topic and develop their own position on this basis. To enable students to do so, students are instructed in how to use the university's literature research facilities and tools in an efficient, advanced manner. The corpus of literary texts has to cover at least two different genres or literary periods.
Learning outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ability to independently analyze a corpus of literary and/or theoretical texts with respect to a specific research question under consideration of current debates in the subject • Ability to orally present the results of own research in a manner adequate to academic discourse • Ability to formulate abstract hypotheses based on one's own research findings, and to position these findings in a larger research context

It is recommended to choose compulsory elective modules totalling 15 ECTS points each in the 2nd and 3rd semester. Students who choose the compulsory elective modules (WP 22 and WP 23) may not choose the compulsory elective module WP 17.

As an alternative to the elective modules WP 18 to WP 23 and WP 32 to WP 37, elective modules totalling 30 ECTS points can be selected from the Gemeinsamer Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaftlicher Profildbereich. It is recommended to choose compulsory elective modules totalling 15 ECTS points each in the 2nd and 3rd semester. The elective modules of the subject "Anglistik (Ang)" within the Gemeinsamer Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaftlicher Profildbereich may not be chosen.

Students may only choose either from the elective modules WP 18 to WP 23 and WP 32 to WP 37 or from the Gemeinsamer Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaftlicher Profildbereich.

Entry requirements Please consult the course catalogue on the online platform LSF for recommended preparatory reading.

Semester Recommended semester: 2

Duration	The completion of the module takes 1 semester.
Content	In this module students independently and comprehensively study chosen topics on an advanced level and critically assess the relevant specialist literature. They are fully familiar with the details of the theoretical concepts, the research methods and questions of the practical application of the selected subject area. Students analyze the potentials for practice in teaching English to different types of learner groups and they develop their own teaching concepts in the context of their research.
Learning outcomes	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ability to critically assess traditional and current theories and methods of Teaching English as a Foreign Language • Ability to reflect on established teaching concepts, critically assess and evaluate recent findings of teaching and learning research and scrutinize their practical applicability to individually selected specific learning and teaching situations • Ability to independently develop theoretical and application-oriented questions within a chosen subject area against the background of traditional and current research positions, and to answer these questions using appropriate methods of description and analysis • Advanced skills for presenting results convincingly both orally and in written form
Type of examination	Seminar paper and oral examination
Type of assessment	The module will be graded.
Requirements for acquiring ECTS credits	ECTS credits will be granted when the module examination (or the examination of pertinent mandatory and potential compulsory elective module parts) has/have been successfully completed.
Responsible contact	Dr. Petra Rauschert
Language(s)	English
Additional information	The module examination consists of two parts, one of which is held in each of the two classes. Therefore, module parts WP 22.1 and WP 22.2 can be done in different semesters and, in case of failure of an examination, only the examination for the failed module part has to be repeated.

Content Building on existing basic, subject-specific theoretical and methodological knowledge and skills, students work on a corpus of literary and/or theoretical texts on a specific topic. Supported by their supervisor, they do so individually and largely independently. They research and work on relevant research literature on their topic and develop their own position on this basis. To enable students to do so, students are instructed in how to use the university's literature research facilities and tools in an efficient, advanced manner.

Learning outcomes

- Ability to independently analyze a corpus of literary and/or theoretical texts with respect to a specific research question under consideration of current debates in the subject

- Ability to orally present the results of own research in a manner adequate to academic discourse
- Ability to formulate abstract hypotheses based on one's own research findings, and to position these findings in a larger research context
